MOTORCYCLES AS ART

Contributing Photographer Jim Dohms

The weather during this year's Biketoberfest was as good as it gets. This month's images are from Willie's Tropical Tattoo, the Boardwalk and The Rat's Hole Motorcycle Shows as well as a shot of bikes on Main Street. You can see more bike images in my Biketoberfest gallery.

Jim Dohms is an award winning photographer who specializes in motorcycle photography and portraiture. He believes that many bike owners would like to have a photograph of their bike in a setting that has special meaning to them or that showcases their bike. His goal is to create motorcycle images with strong visual impact that bike owners will want to hang on their wall.

Jim is at Quaker Steak and Lube most Wednesday evenings. Stop by and say hello and see the variety of prints he has on display. If you can't make it there, visit his website at www.DohmsCreativePhotography.com and browse through over 200 motorcycle images taken around Florida.

BENEFIT FOR BOBBY "SPIDERMAN"

On September 25th, The Porpoise Pub was slammed with both bikes and cars that overflowed their parking lots. All who came on either two or four wheels, were there to show their love and support for Bobby and Debbie. Bobby who is currently fighting cancer, is the guy who has always been there for anyone in need. So, on this successful and emotion packed day, it was fitting that many brothers and sisters came out to show their compassion and love for Spiderman. It was a day of celebration. So, Stay Strong Our Brother! You Know We Love You!!

FIRE & IRON POKER RUN

Fire & Iron MC's 5th Annual Poker Run benefitting the Children's Burn Foundation was held on September 24th. We had perfect riding weather, great people to ride with and it's estimated that 100 Bikes registered at Banana Boat II. Kickstands went up around noon and the ride began. Additional stops were at Undertow Beach Bar, Cuso's Cantina, Porpoise Pub and the final stop back to Banana Boat II for food, ice cold drinks and live music by Kilo. A super band who donated their time as well as their tips to the kids.

It was a wonderful day for the Children's Burn Foundation with approximately $8,000 being raised. A big shout out of thanks to the 50/50 and poker hand winners who donated their winnings back to the Burn Foundation. A very Special Thanks to Banana Boat II for donating the food, and to a very wonderful woman that RNM admires greatly, Attorney Fran Haasch who was the major sponsor for this event.

It was a wonderful day for such a worthwhile cause, and as always the Biker Community responded!

Daytona Biketoberfest 2011 Rocked!

Valerie Smith

It all began on Wednesday the 12th by the RNM crew placing the Kymco 50cc Scooter in the Holiday Inn Resort Lobby. Wednesday night Diana, Scotty & Cindy, Russ, Jess (my daughter) and I went down to Main Street. Needless to say, it was already rocking and Evil Monkey tore up the place inside Boothill Saloon. Thanks to Bro Bob on sound the RNM banners were hung high over the stage.

Thursday Willie's Tropical Tattoo was the place to be and it was evident that the kickstand plates were a welcomed addition to several of the vintage bikes, thanks to Fran Haasch. Willie is a tattooed hottie and a mainstay in the Daytona Biker & Tattoo scene. World known and a legend who always welcomes us with open arms. His show is always slammed and a great place to mingle.

Friday the Rider Now Crew were throwing shirts & hats from the stage at Boothill. Johnny Lange from Strip Club Choppers rode in on his new Flame Throwing PoleGlide. As our pictures show, all ages of women love that pole! One beautiful blonde let the crowd see the pole in action. We were a big success and everyone loved the words..."Free Stuff!" Thank you Karen (Owner of Boothill) for allowing us to party with your crowd! We love you guys and appreciate your hospitality!

Saturday the Holiday Inn Resort opened their back pool bar to us for a Rider Now Party with raffles, music and the Scooter Drawing. Free food and a prize for everyone made the party a huge success. Shriner Scotty Flynn had a beautiful bartender pull the winning ticket for the 50cc scooter. The winner, Tom Stuto was not present but we reached him by phone. He picked the Scooter up on Sunday.

We want to thank everyone who participated in the raffle for the Ocala Shrine Club.

New Engine Break-In Procedure ... worth repeating again....

Did this article 2 yrs ago at the start up of Rider Now Magazine. Since the magazine's circulation has increased dramatically since that time, thought this is a very important procedure and worth repeating. The main purpose of break-in is to seat the compression rings to the cylinder walls. At initial start up run the engine one minute at 1250-1750 rpm. DO NOT crack the throttle. Check to see that the oil pressure is normal & that oil is returning to the oil tank. Shut off engine & check for any leaks. Let engine cool. Now start up again and allow the motor to build some heat. Run engine no longer than three to four minutes. When the cylinders become hot to the touch shut off & let it cool to room temp. Repeat this procedure 3 or 4 times. Each time it should take slightly longer to warm up and you can increase the temp. each time by 10 degrees. Gently vary rpm continuously from idle up to 2500 rpm in the final cycle. After the motor has cooled to room temp. for the last time you are ready to start the 1000 mile engine break-in process. THE FIRST 50 MILES ARE MOST CRITICAL for new rings and pistons. Engine damage is most likely to occur during this period. Keep heat down by not exceeding 2500 rpm. Avoid lugging the motor and do not ride in hot weather or in traffic. Vary the engine speed. Change the oil at 50 miles. The next 500 miles do not go faster than 3500 rpm or 60 mph & vary engine rpm. For the last 500 miles of the 1000 mile break-in the motor can be run in a normal, but conservative manner. You can operate at normal highway speeds, but avoid overheating or putting any hard strain on the engine...no drag racing y'all!

Rantings of A Madman

— Johnny and Jay

I have been on the road for over a decade now and I thought I would share with you some of my observations and insight. Please do not take these personally and dont get offended; these are just the rantings of a mad man. I thought it would be neat to put them in a TOP TEN list ala Letterman.

Number 10 I WOULD LOVE TO COME TO YOUR EVENT AND THIS IS HOW MUCH I CHARGE $$$ It is not financially sound to drive halfway across the country at 6mpg to set up at a small rally to lose money

Number 9 PHOTOGRAPHERS PLEASE DO NOT TRY TO SELL ME A PHOTO SHOOT My scooters have appeared in numerous mags and tv shows and I never turn down free publicity but dont try to sell me a shoot.

Number 8 LADIES I DONT GIVE FREE SHIRTS IF YOU SHOW ME YOUR TITS As much pleasure as I find in your offer I have seen a lot of them and its not a good business plan.

Number 7 DONT ASK FOR A DISCOUNT ON A T-SHIRT We dont sell 5 for 20 t-shirts and never will I give my repeat customers and the rare person who doesnt annoy me a discount.

Number 6 PLEASE DONT ASK ME TO MAKE OTHER PEOPLE T-SHIRT DESIGNS I have worked very hard to create a brand identity and would not ever use someone's designs and I hunt down those who steal mine (see next months article)

Number 5 JUST BECAUSE YOU CAN BE NAKED DOESN'T MEAN YOU SHOULD BE NAKED I do a lot of clothing optional adult rallies and as a general rule if your stomach exceeds your chest please remain clothed and all men need to be clothed.

Number 4 THIS IS STRIP CLUB CHOPPERS IT IS NOT A STRIP CLUB Please dont come to the booth and expect a lap dance or naked women do you have any idea the legal nightmare that would be.

Number 3 STAY OFF MY BIKES! Just because it has a pole on it doesn't mean you should climb on it. I was raise to never touch someone's bike without permission and I still follow that credo for once please follow my example.

Number 2 I DONT MAKE KIDS CLOTHES and never will just not comfortable going down that road I have enough stuff I have to answer for already.

Number 1 PLEASE DONT WALK INTO MY BOOTH AND ASK WHAT I HAVE FOR FREE I give free stuff to people who make a purchase and I send stuff to Iraq and Afghanistan and donate to legit charities but when I pull up at the truck stop for diesel fuel it ain't free

As I indicated earlier these were just for fun and 99 % of the people are great this list is for the rest .

Ocala Ritz Veterans Village

The U.S. Military Vets MC Marion County Chapter held a poker run August 13th to support the Ocala Ritz Veterans Village renovation project. When completed the facility will provide housing for 52 homeless veterans. There will be a 24 month limit to their stay during which time councilors and job training classes will be provided.

The run started and ended at Fat Daddy's in Summerfield, FL with stops at Bogart's Smoke Shop, Sharkey's and Kool Kat Saloon. Fat Daddy's provided a husky breakfast at the sign-up and a great meal at the end with a brisket that was said to be the best they ever had. Evil Monkey & Shaky Puddin' Band supplied the entertainment.

The run netted $1845.00 with donations still coming in for the Ocala Ritz Veterans Village these added funds should help get the program started.

'Chappy' and 'Doc', members of the U.S. Military Vets MC Marion County Chapter, had made arrangements with Al Morrison the director of Ocala Ritz Veterans Village for us to present the check. By the time the check was delivered with other donations the total amount was $2000.00.

Al was very thankful for the added funds and gave us a run-down on the services that will be available to the housed veterans and gave us a tour of the facility. The first of the four 'towers' would be opening in two or three weeks.

Items still needed are coffee pots, small appliances, George Forman type grills and microwaves also any household items, can food and of course cash donations. Al Morrison can be reached at 352.426.3760. More information can be seen at <theocalaritzveteransvillage.blogspot.com>

WHO DO YA KNOW

My wife tells me all the time that I know everyone. Of course she is just exaggerating, but she doesn't think so. It's just that every where we go it seems like there is someone there that knows me. I don't know what the deal is. I guess I know a lot of people. We'll be just riding down the road and someone will come by yelling my name, or I will be telling her, "Hey I know that guy over there." Happens all of the time. What do you want me to tell you, I ride a lot and I talk to people everywhere I go. It is what I do. God gave me the gift of GAB and so I use the gift or loose the gift. At least that is how I see it in the bible. Use it or loose it. Just read Mathew 25:14-30. Any way. So I have come to know a lot of people. This past weekend we rode down to Key west for the "Phil Peterson's Run". Of course we run into people we know or I know. We had a great time. Some people I see down there that I won't see anywhere else. Cool, right. We eat some good food get lots of sun and just have a blast. I love riding in the Keys. We had a great ride down and a great ride back up to Ocala. Of course I meet some new people too. So the question is "WHO DO YAKNOW?"

You can know all kinds of people all over the place, but do you know the right person. Sometimes getting something done requires knowing just the right man for the job. I might know a guy that owns a bike shop that has the part I need. Knowing the right person can come in handy at any given time. Maybe I can be in the right place at the right time to help someone out. Or somebody has a need and I am just the person to call to answer that need. Again, "WHO DO YAKNOW?"

We can know all sorts of people for all sorts of reasons. Friends we ride with and hang with. Family that we love and loves us. Some needs might be personal, some emotional, some might be financial. People we can help and people who can help us. But, there is only one person that we absolutely need to know more than anyone else. His name is Jesus. Nobody else that we can know will effect our lives like he will. He is the only person that can make sure all of our needs are met. He is our creator, our savior and our best friend. Nobody cares about us more than he does. No body else died for us so we could live with him. "WHO DO YA KNOW?" Do you know Jesus? Have you acknowledged him and asked him to be a part of your life? Do you hang with him? Did you know he was hanging with you?

Eternity is forever and it is bigger than all of the people in the world. Jesus is the the one to know that will effect where you spend your eternity. Like I said in the beginning, my wife says I know a lot of people. The most important person I know is Jesus. He is fully man and fully GOD. He is the right person to know. Once again "WHO DO YA KNOW"? Any questions? Want to know? contact me at 352-229-6643 or at bifer4cma@gmail.com. Be blessed.

“The Buffalo Bike”

Often lost in the graphic creations of today is the artist's personal relationship with letterform, compromised because of both the pressing dynamic of the deadline and the speed today at which the computer provides the artist a variety of fonts from a digital library. Graphic designers are driven by different collective criteria today and produce output that, like signwork through the ages, is continuing to evolve. Yet the constant remains; a design in the busy marketplace is only given a glance. If the message is not clear, the sign qualifies as one that does not work. Many reasons drive the decisions the designer makes; interpretation of what is primary, desires of the customer, effective editing (of the elements and principle copy,) design formula (or lack of) and now in the cyber age, the temptation to utilize all of the special effects at the designers fingertips to achieve a variety of results. These choices offer a myriad of possibilities but often compromise the timeless formulas for successful display.

Because of my background starting as a sign designer and a lettering man, I see both the beauty in successful composition and flaws in what is being produced today and can often identify why a design does not work

While set up in the parking lot at yet another Harley store, ready for the upcoming customer appreciation party, I went inside to look around. I was looking at the word “Hoosier,” done in a crude auto emblem style on a shirt. I not only recognized an inappropriateness of the use of the style, some flaws in its execution, but began to visualize an improvement, a hand drawn creation that would also imply longevity of the establishment with the use of a style that was popular a hundred years ago. You may be wondering why I was looking at the shirt designs in the store instead of remaining immersed in creating yet another way of “duding up” a bike. The owner of the company that produces most of the shirts on sale at Harley-Davidson stores across the country had planted a seed in my mind and encouraged me to design for him.

While acting as a detective on the retail floor at Hoosier Harley-Davidson, I was approached by Gina who was elated with the news of this service. I began to investigate her vision for a new design. She was not at all happy with the chunky and slightly illegible letter style that I had been looking at. She had another image in mind for a better shirt design. Drawing from my background as a sign painter and combining her desire for a nostalgic look, I began to sketch the graceful interactions of a dynamic script style that does not show up in any font file. The only source for such an inspired soda-script masthead design is the mind and hand of the artist. As my pencil established the collaboration of our minds, a smile grew on her face.

My memory starts to whirl through the myriad events that preceded this wonderful smile and the picture in my mind goes back through the past to the observation of something bizarre that started it all. I recall the exact moment in the crowded parking lot, surrounded by motorcycles where one sight stopped me in my tracks. As I looked out over the sea of bikes, one machine stood out with no shine, no sparkle and nothing in common with the rest and I did a double take. The motorcycle that piqued my interest was completely covered with brown shaggy fur and the stuffed head of a buffalo was mounted to the front. I was thrilled and drawn in to look closer. I asked the owner if I could sit on his bike and get my picture taken and he was most cordial, although apparently on a mission because he disappeared. I recruited someone to take my camera and then straddled and posed for a picture.

Later, when the film was developed, I had an eight by ten printed and sent to my friends in Indiana that have a buffalo ranch. Over the years I have painted many scenes and designs on buffalo skulls and hides for them and many of these works are on display in the showroom at their ranch. Murals depicting buffalo are also painted on their stock trailer, motor home and concession trailer. Knowing they would enjoy this, I wrote a note that accompanied the photo of me on the buffalo bike that exclaimed “you’ll never believe who I saw the other day; Buffalo Dave!”

I saw the buffalo bike again over the years at subsequent bike rallies across the country, and became familiar with the owner who also inquired about my creating some artwork designs. At first I wondered how I could decorate the shaggy fur on his bike and then I learned that his company makes the licensed T-shirts that are sold in H-D dealerships across the country.

Ron and I see each other at bike events throughout the year where we pause in the midst of the hub-bub of activity to enjoy one another's company. He enjoys reading “Tales of a Traveling Airbrush” and commends my writing style. Years ago at the York, Pennsylvania “Factory Open House,” one facet of our conversation became an invitation to visit him in St Louis and get a tour of the T-shirt plant.

Later that year, the opportunity occurred. Prior to Christmas I flew to Cleveland to rendezvous with Mary, whose thirteen week contract in Vermont was complete. On the trip to see my mother, St Louis was on the way. Crossing the same fertile Midwest that I serve during the summer, I saw frozen farms and the remnants of a recent blizzard that gradually softened as we drove south and west. The expressway across Indiana and Illinois later funneled us across the bridge over the Mississippi River. As dusk arrived the expressway yielded to a state road boulevard lined with illuminated retail stores. The next turn took us north on a two lane road that led into relative suburban darkness sprinkled with Christmas lights. We found the housing development cluster and the long driveway that lead to a home isolated from the rest. We arrived at Ron's abode at dusk thirty. He was flanked by dogs that silently greeted us, wagged their tails and accepted our presence. In the living room Ron announced that Buffalo Bike #3 is under construction. Throughout the remainder of the evening we heard many anecdotes that accompanied his interesting career, all a by product of love. Starting as a way to finance his passion; flat track racing, Ron started making T-shirts under the grandstand at racetracks and rodeos across Illinois and all the way out to the Black Hills. His young daughter wielded the screen printing squeegee and handled the details of selling the shirts to free Ron up to race. This relationship is intact today, although now, even more of his family fills the ranks of staff now that the enterprise has grown. Our animated conversation lasted well into the evening and when we finally retired, we slept like logs.

“The Buffalo Bike”

The next morning Ron was out the door at dawn. We helped ourselves to the breakfast goodies that waited in the kitchen, then, packed up again, we headed for the plant to get our tour.

The RKStratman plant is comprised of two large buildings only a mile away from his home. The main structure houses management, a fleet of artists sitting at computers in cubicles finishing new custom designs, and the girls on phones stay in touch with the salesmen in the field and the purchasing managers in the various Harley-Davidson stores across the country.

After the personal tour of the main building, Ron took us to the production building and the foreman there gave us a tour. The other building houses 100,000 plus square feet of production, packaging, receiving and shipping space. Various rooms house different specific activities; racks and racks of screens stand waiting in one, are prepared to receive an artwork positive (from the dark room) in another, exposed and washed out in still others, with various solvent and color stock rooms and a huge area that receives the shirt blanks in every size and color, although mostly black. Workers sort the sizes and styles into piles of shirts for the production runs that await. After the production is complete, another large room prepares the finished shirts for shipping and on a regular basis throughout the day, the fed-ex and other delivery trucks stop by, pick up and deliver lots of boxes.

In the middle of this cavernous building is the production floor. The name carousel aptly describes the ride that each shirt will take at any one of these numerous machines that stand like large horizontal snowflakes in the middle of a mixture of carts filled with supplies, stations with computers, pallets on forklifts and other support devices. Each multi color screen printing turn table has one operator that pulls the completed shirt off the shirt platen affixed to one arm of the carousel and puts a fresh shirt on the same platen to begin the orbit through the various processes again. As the new shirt moves to the first station, a screen lowers into perfect alignment on the shirt automatically and a mechanical process moves the squeegee pushing a lateral puddle of thick ink across the screen, imprinting the shirt with the first color – this one being an opaque white to cover the black background for the next colors to appear vivid on.

The shirt rides on to the next station, and the next, and at each one, another facet of the multi-step process takes place. Some stops have drying devices to accelerate the flashing off of the solvents in the ink. Some carousels have a half-dozen stations and produce several color designs. Other carousels are large with up to twenty stations and subtle color inclusions are possible for spectacular imprinted effects.

Production runs are limited by the lifespan of the screens that begin to show wear after printing several hundred shirts, so in essence, all the art produced on shirts are RKStratman “Limited Edition” pieces.

As the completely printed shirts come off the turntable, they are laid on a conveyer belt that takes them through a drying oven. At the other side the shirts are folded, counted and stacked for shipment. With over six hundred Harley-Davidson stores across the country there is a production run at some stage of development or completion for each of them at any time.

After the tour, back in Ron’s office, the real reason for the invitation was disclosed. He recognizes the value of my experience, having interviewed and created compositional ideas for the countless clients I have served in the capacity of mural, sign and design artist. The only personnel that interact with each Harley-Davidson store in the field are his salesmen, who do not have the ability to visualize an idea and create a pencil sketch of that idea.

Ron’s vision includes Letterfly as an artist in the field as an important link in the service he offers, creating pencil compositions from the prompt coming on location with the customer for his art staff to develop into finished artwork for a new design for that particular Harley-Davidson store. Because the Letterfly design making process that has been in place for over thirty years always starts with an interview, I have become quite good at finding out what a person wants. With the production of over two thousand personally created airbrushed murals on motor homes, award winning signwork, wet-blended pictorials on a variety of substrates, traditionally painted interior and exterior murals and countless custom images and designs on motorcycles, I have become quite sensitive to discovering and interpreting the desires of my customers and creating pleasing design work. Some have a limited ability to communicate a concept that they are not visualizing clearly and others are an enthusiastic visionary with a precise request that simply needs me to translate their desire and create the finished work of art.

When I arrived at Mike’s Famous H-D in Wilmington a year ago, Debbie Schwartz, the motor clothes manager, was also delighted to hear the news of this service. She was not happy with the dark image of the towering base of a bridge structure that was a frontispiece of one of the RKStratman designs and had a vision of a much more pleasant one. She knew the salesmen she dealt with don’t think in pictures and if they could understand her description they still couldn’t clarify the concept right before her eyes with a pencil and a sketch book. She described to me her idea complete with the desired color palette for the sky and the particular model and color of motorcycle to feature in the foreground. After finding a reference picture of the famous bridge that is a local landmark, an example of the chevron shape “Mike’s Famous” icon and a image of the bike she likes, I made a pencil sketch from her prompt with notations of the specific elements and colors that she required to be included. Once the rough pencil composition was approved by her, I cleaned it up with pen and ink and sent it to Ron and company. Elated to be a link, creating not only a commissioned piece of art to benefit Mike’s Famous Harley-Davidson and RKStratman, easily my favorite outcome from this endeavor was promoting and receiving the smile I came to enjoy on her face.

Being of service to industry professionals is yet another way I radiate the passion for creation that fills my heart. This gift I have been given seems to multiply as I share it with the people I meet. Just like the person accumulating wealth monitors every dime, paying attention to the little opportunities to be a blessing to others each day compounds my gratitude.

Phil Petersons 39th Key West Poker Run 2011

Our trip down south began on Thursday and it was a beautiful ride. We stayed off the highway and traveled through the Florida wilderness and Indian Reservations on US41. It reminded of old family holidays with the run down stores, roadside picnic areas and advertisements to "Pet a Live Florida Alligator". But once we got onto US1 we were jolted back into this decade with the modern highway, a concrete barrier wall right down the middle and black chain link fences on each side. Like it says in the old song "Signs" sung by The Five Man Electrical Band; "Hey, what gives you the right to put up a fence to keep me out or to keep Mother Nature in if God was here he'd tell you to your face, Man you're some kind of sinner."

When we pulled into Gilbert's where we were staying for the night, we were right back in the 60's again! This place was as Old School as it gets! If you want 5 star accommodations, this was not the place. It said so right on the check in desk! After throwing the bags into the room it was off to the bar, grab a Rum Runner and then fall into the pool. Oh Yea, that was it!

Once we were cooled down and rinsed off from spending the day in the wind, we headed back north again and joined the other couple hundred bikers at Phil Peterson's for their Pre-Poker Run Bike Night. All our drinking and eating pleasures were easily cured after a visit to the vendor of our choice. After some socializing we grabbed our poker cards and event T-shirts and headed back south ... we could those Rum Runners calling out to us! Needless to say we had no problem falling asleep that night!

The next morning, Friday, we loaded up the bikes and went back to the Tiki Hut where they had breakfast items of your choice, hot coffee or Bloody Mary's, depending on if you were a rider or a passenger. At 9:00 AM sharp the girls had the poker cards ready and we were amongst the first group to pick our cards. Let's just say that being first is not always a good thing. I was well on my way to having the worst hand but the sun was shining and the road was calling.

Since there was only an average of about 25 miles between stops it didn't take long to get to stop number two, Lor-e-lei's. They had the table set up right on the docks, next to the dining patio with a gorgeous view of the ocean. We didn't stick around as we had already eaten. Next stop was at the Island Fish Company where we enjoyed another view of the ocean while quenching our morning thirst. At the fourth stop, Boondocks, we ate a delicious meal of fresh fish sandwiches cooked the way we liked. These platters were so big we probably should have shared one. But hey, we were on vacation in the Keys which means we were on a See Sea Food diet. If we saw sea food, we were gonna eat it!

The last stop was in downtown Key West at the Conch Republic Seafood Company. This open air restaurant was set right on the docks of the Key West harbor. We watched as the charter boats were unloading the mornings catch, filleting them and packaging them for delivery to all the places we were going to eat this weekend. There was no shortage of fresh Key West seafood!

Once we got settled into our Hotel, we hit the pool again to wash off the day's ride. Did you know that you can pay for a drink at a pool just by telling the bartender your room number? Pretty fancy place! By the end of the weekend though, I realized how dangerous that can be. Those drinks traveled all the way to my bill! Then it was shower, dress and hit main street Key West ... Duval Street, here we come! Since we were in walking distance of Duval Street we planned on having a drink at every place that would serve us, which was all of them.

We spent the day bouncing from vendors to motorcycles to bars, back to motorcycles and bars, back to bars and bars, well, you get the idea. By dinner time that Friday I would guess that there were 8,000 plus motorcycles and at least twice the people. But crowds like this are easy for Key West to handle. Most times we were served right away and I don't think we ever waited more than 5-10 minutes max. We had a great dinner at Two Friends Patio Restaurant and headed toward Mallory Square. If you have never been to Mallory Square, it is a boardwalk lined with freak shows, magic shows, feats of strength, courage and stupidity, musicians and vendors selling handmade trinkets, arts and crafts of all kinds. This boardwalk is situated right on the water's edge with the ocean, islands and sailboats of all kinds as the background. And then it happens ... the beautiful Key West sunset you have been waiting to see. This is definitely one of those 'It doesn't get any better than this' moments! After sunset we settled into a few chairs at Captain Tony's and enjoyed the live music and cold drinks until late into the night. Good thing we could walk home after this day!

We started out Saturday by visiting the Southern Most Point and doing the typical touristy thing, pictures with the Buoy. Then on to the Southernmost Beach Café for a huge breakfast and you probably already where it is ... right on the water. Go figure! While chatting it up with the other early risers, I looked out onto the water and saw it. There was this guy, hovering 30 feet above the water with streams of water shooting down his back and legs. It was a water jet pack and man did it look like fun! He was flying up and down the coast line, in and out of the water, just like in a B rated movie! After this show we headed out to do some sightseeing.

First we drove around the island stopping at Higgs Beach so the girls could dip their toes into the water. What's up with that? We friggin live in Clearwater! Anyway, with that moment photographed and completed our next stop was House Boat Row. The Key West Bight Marina is home to both charter boats and house boats. The sign said residents and guests only so since we were guests we took a walk along the docks checking out the house boats. A couple of the owners were nice enough to talk with us and try to explain why living there was the best but I guess it's like owning a Harley Davidson, if they have to explain you just don't get it. We then found the Key West cemetery which has been there since the 1800's, which was pretty evident looking at some of the monuments. Remember, Key West is at sea level so everybody is buried just below ground or above ground in cripts and concrete caskets.

Back to the hotel, park the bikes and we started our walking tour of downtown Key West. We checked all the places like the Hemmingway House, Mel Fishers Museum and the Ship Wreck Museum. Our walk continued to the north where you can almost walk the western entire perimeter of town on boat docks. Along the way we stopped at several of the local watering holes like the Schooner Wharf Bar where they had a tattoo contest earlier in the day. At Lands End Village we visited the Turtle Museum and had drinks at the Turtle Kraals Bar. Every Friday night they set up a track and have actual turtle races. I'm told they have been doing this even way before it became illegal to sell turtle meat. We then across to the other side of the village and enjoyed another seafood dinner at Half Shell Raw Bar. This place has not changed since I lived here back in the 1980's, although it does look like they mopped a few times. Dinner was huge, again, and we talked about catching a cab back to the hotel but decided the walk would do us good, which was a good decision because we got to see the 'local' Key West which has beautifully designed and built houses.

Saturday night was spent doing the Duval Crawl. Drinks were flowing in the Hard Rock Café, Fat Tuesdays, The Bull and Whistle, Ricks Upstairs, Hogs Breath Saloon and Sloppy Joes. But we found ourselves finishing the night at Captain Tony's again. Just couldn't get enough of the live band, powerful drinks and all those bras hanging on the ceiling instead of on some chick's chest. We can't seem to remember the walk back to the room but we made it somehow.

On Sunday, most of the bikers loaded up and headed out but we decided to stay one more day. We enjoyed that day with another breakfast at the Southernmost Café where we found their Bloody Mary buffet. They bring you a tall glass ready for you to add your choice of 3 types of mixes and dozens of vegetables, spices and hot sauces. What a great idea! After eating we took a leisurely ride around the island checking out some of the inner roads. It was traveling back into history with the 100+ year old houses and cobblestone roads. We shopped and ate at several local places enjoying most of the island to ourselves that afternoon. After a nice soak in the pool and a huge Mexican dinner we were off to bed.

Monday morning found us wishing we could be 'locals' but alas, we quickly remembered that we had responsibilities at home that we couldn't ignore. Our plans to stay an extra day were well rewarded with the roads being uncluttered and not being in a rush to get home. We enjoyed several stops along the way including a visit to the Miccosukee Indian Village to "Pet a Live Florida Alligator". The Key West Poker Run will definitely be one of our top vacation memories and we are already planning our next trip down there. Want to come along?

Reaping The Rewards of Giving Back

Charlie Daniels is a great example of someone who has "made it" and continues to thrive. I honestly believe that a big factor in his longevity in the music industry is the fact that he gives so much to others. I grew up in Nashville with a father who dabbled in the music industry. I remember Charlie from Muthers Music Emporium before his hit single "The Devil Went Down To Georgia".

When I last saw Charlie we were at a Dinner Fund Raiser for The Angelus House at the Hard Rock Casino in Tampa. I told him of my Nashville roots and that I had met him the first time at Muthers, over 30 years ago. "Girl, we go way back!" he replied with that Southern gentleman drawl and a twinkle in his eye. His good nature and kindness has not waived over the years.

Unlike others I have met, David Allen Coe, as a good example. Who have very little time for fans and struggle thru a performance, as if they would rather be anywhere else! Charlie honestly enjoys performing and it is evident as the 75 year old stomps his booted foot to the beat and commands the stage. God and Country are major players in his world and helping the less fortunate by giving of himself must be his goal.

When you have come as far as he has and have achieved all that he has achieved....what else is there? Every year he comes to Tampa for a 3 day event to raise funds for The Angelus House Residential Facility for Handicapped Adults. Our thanks to Fran Haasch for being a Sponsor and the Rider Now Magazine crew will be there covering the event for you. Golf, food, music & the opportunity to smooze with a legend who has a heart the size of his cowboy hat.....and NEVER forgot where he came from! Being able to enjoy his life and the long road of his accomplishments, while giving to others must be his reward. Do NOT Miss this Event.
